Chères familles,

It's been a fantastic term filled with incredible achievements and hard work. Our students have continued to show remarkable dedication in their studies, creativity, and extracurricular activities, making us all proud of what they've accomplished.

Looking through the projects featured in this newsletter, I am inspired by the talent, enthusiasm, and effort displayed across a variety of activities. It's a joy to see our students not only excel but also engage in meaningful learning experiences that will shape their future.

As we approach exam season, I want to wish all of our students the best of luck. Your hard work is evident, and I'm confident that it will serve you well in the upcoming exams.

Bonne lecture,

Pauline Prévot

Let's Talk: Oracy in Focus

Our ambitious definition of bilingualism - which focuses on achieving equal mastery of French and English, orally and in writing - naturally places huge importance on oracy skills. Our pedagogical team is currently working on a major project focused on enhancing dialogic teaching methods across the school. Guided by the latest research in this area, the project aims to evaluate and refine the quality of classroom questioning and dialogue. We can't wait to share our initial findings with you!

Our debating team triumphed in the Schools' Mace quarter-finals, placing us in the top 12 out of 360 schools! Their hard work and teamwork have earned them a spot in the semi-finals. A big thank you to their teachers for their guidance. Onwards to the next round!
